Abstract

This is a great paper and it has a concise abstract.

Keywords: List of keywords

1. Introduction

This is where the content of your paper goes. Remember to:

- Include, within the first 12 or less pages, a concise and clear statement and discussion of the paper’s contributions.
- Include, either in the main text or the appendices, all proofs and derivations required to substantiate the results.
- Do not include author names (this is done automatically by inclusion of “anon” option in documentclass), and to the extent possible, avoid directly identifying the authors. You should still include all relevant references, including your own, and any other relevant discussion, even if this might allow a reviewer to infer the author identities.
- Avoid modifying the default margins, spacing and fonts (either manually or via packages such as fullpage).

Appendix A. My Proof of Theorem 1

This is a boring technical proof.

Appendix B. My Proof of Theorem 2

This is a complete version of a proof sketched in the main text.
